

ROOSEVELT'S SORTIE FOR ELEPHANTS THIS AFTERNOON

(By Warrington Dawson, Staff Correspondent United Press.)
Kilabe, British East Africa, June 4.—In the hope of getting his first shot at an elephant, Colonel Roosevelt will make a short sortie this afternoon into the dense forests that surround Kilabe in whose fastnesses many elephants find a safe retreat. The elephant hunting expedition is not as favorable as in the South District and the chances are all against Mr. Roosevelt but so anxious is he to tumble one of the "Big Bellow" that he could not resist the opportunity and so the start of the trip to Sortie has been postponed until tomorrow. This morning Mr. Roosevelt went after some rare specimens of monkey that are found in the woods just outside the town. It was the hardest work that he has yet encountered as the surrounding country is of towering thickly wooded hills whose ascent was most fatiguing.

Mr. Roosevelt and Kermit were guests at luncheon to-day at the American missionaries who manage the African Inland Mission situated in Kilabe. He made an address to the missionaries in praise of their part in the wonderful progress that is taking place in Africa.

DR. EGGINTON GETS LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Dr. Leo Egginton, who was recently elected ambulance surgeon by the Board of Charities has been given a leave of absence until August 1. Dr. James Kiernan will act in his place. Dr. Egginton was an intern at St. Vincent's hospital and his duties at the emergency hospital were about the same as those of an intern. But the Bridgeport Medical Society raised a fuss over it and complained to George E. Hill, county health officer about the matter. Dr. Egginton did not care to offend the medical society so he agreed to retire temporarily. Dr. Egginton had been on the house staff at St. Vincent's hospital for months and was regarded a most promising young physician. The action of the medical society only prevents him from earning a living at his profession until he will be able to appear before the state examining board at Hartford.

Croker Calls Down Ambulance Surgeons

(Special from United Press.)
New York, June 4.—A fire which humiliated the lives of scores of persons many of whom were choked by smoke and suffocated by the burning building by firemen, was characterized this morning by a wordy battle between Fire Chief Croker and the numerous ambulance surgeons who were called in to attend to the injured firemen. The fire chief declared:

"I am tired of having ambulance surgeons kidnapping my men and have them taken to their department to care for our injured." The fire which started in a seven story tenement at No. 28 Delancey street, for a time impeded the Williamsburg Bridge and several large tenements nearby. Forty men were rounded up by the firemen and taken from the building which was filled with heavy smoke. Fireman Charles Promingham was overcome by the smoke and after crawling to a window, was carried down a ladder by his comrades. The dispute between Croker and the ambulance surgeons arose over the treatment of Promingham. It was the culmination of a feud of long standing. Promingham is in a serious condition.
